Good morning!
The poles are actually the easiest part, we have them in stock,
The rest of the signage is pretty standard for us, I believe we have bid this last year and U will look this up.
The boxes were going to be expensive so we were going with a flat aluminum sign with replaceable decals on the faces as the routes change, a new sticker was put on, this looks perfect all the time and is easily fixable if vandalized.

Subject: Trolley Signs

Hey Randy,

Lorena sent an email to you a few days ago to get your thoughts on the new trolley signs.

Couple items that were key to the port and from our meeting were...

1. The top sign could be a red trolley cut out with the stop name on it.
2. Apparently a lockable shadow box is not the same as the blue boxed schedule below, would you be able to produce this same outdoor box with clear cover that we can open and close or have any suggestions of sourcing.
3. I have identified galvanized poles already from a local socal metal pole manufacturer if that is difficult for wellington to produce.

Let us know your thoughts on what we can work on with you!
